MONDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 17.

BRING FORTH YOUR STEEDS.

Hear all ye Rebs an' Boys in Gray!
Have you a horse marked U. S. A.
Or even a mule, not worth his hay,
So runs the order,
Just fork him over, without a neigh,
Or cut the border.

If there's a single doubt, you find,
Whether the beast be halt or blind,
Or owns a hollow tooth to grind
His corn or gruel.

The Bureau soon will ease your mind,
Or ease your mule.

For further particulars see order from Headquarters of the Department of Virginia published below, and as the court said to the criminals upon whom it was passing sentence of death, "my good fellows, let this be a warning to you for the future."

HEAD QRS. OF THE DEPT. POTOMAC,
RICHMOND, Va. Dec. 8th, 1865.

General Orders, No. 11.
All horses and mules which belong to the United States, and are in the hands of private citizens within the limits of this Department, whether lent to them by the military authorities after the close of the war, taken up as stray, or otherwise acquired, will be at once returned to the Government, through the nearest officer of the Army or of the Freedmen's Bureau.

Officers of the Freedmen's Bureau will give proper publicity to this order, and cause it to be complied with in all cases. They will receive and care for the animals, and report their number and condition to these Headquarters, when orders will be given for their disposition.

By command of Brig. and Bvt. Maj. Gen. J. M. Schofield, U. S. A.

S. F. CHAPMAN,
Asst. Adj. General.
